Phil Lockett

Email Me

Location: Dallas, TX

Most conversations with Phil at some point get around to football. That's because he is a recently retired referee for the National Football League. The NFL hired him in 1991 and in that capacity, he has officiated games from Tokyo to Europe. In 1997 he worked both the Super Bowl in New Orleans (Green Bay vs. New England) and the World Bowl in Barcelona, Spain (Barcelona vs. Frankfurt).

So as a speaker, Phil is accustomed to speaking to very large crowds – in the millions! (Admittedly, not everyone has always agreed with what he has had to say on the microphone but he doesn't let that bother him.)

Phil's ministry activities have included: teaching a "home small group" and adult Sunday school classes, and serving with Champions For Life (formerly Bill Glass Prison Ministries). Desiring to see God's glory go to all nations, he serves on the church's missions team, conducts lots of missions education such as Perspectives, and goes on and leads short-term missions trips. Recent trips have been primarily to Tatarstan, Russia. Phil also served as the conference administrator for the annual Ethnic Workers Summit, a national conference in Dallas in 2005.
