Topics such as feel-good theology, suffering, fairness, "winner's circle gospel," wrong priorities, and Christian humanism are dealt with in a fresh way that causes even the most seasoned theologian or missionary to ponder if he or she has not unwittingly been affected with this self-centered mind-set.... At first the book's title made me skeptical about its contents. but once I began reading it, it was one book I could not put down. Its message is so important I now require all my missions students to read it and recommend missionaries and mission committees to do so as well." - Marvin Newell - (Moody Graduate School--as reviewed in EMQ Magazine)
